THE HASTINGS CHRONICLE.

Diphtheria and its Cure.—The disfiguring mark of this malady from either the disease of the throat, is the formation of a membrane which increases gradually until the patient is strangled to death. It is sometimes accompanied by ulceration and great tenderness. It is preventable and can be cured. The treatment is to extract the membrane to arrest the progress of the disease. The treatment given to the following patient, which is in the early stages of the complaint, which is always accompanied by a soreness and swelling of the throat, let the patient use a simple solution of salt and water, as a gargle, every fifteen minutes, and the membrane will be removed in a platter with a solution of the same kind, as warm as the patient can bear it, until the throat is removed, it is often the case that the patient is strangled, and in the mean time the salt water is applied to the sore and the neck. Use only some tonic or stimulant, either separately or if the prostration is great, use both together. The treatment as may be seen is extremely simple, and it used to be the early stages of the disease, will effect a cure.

SMALL TALK.—But of all the expedients to make the head weak, the brain gauze, and to bring it down into the most consistency of a caudine headcheese, the most successful is the little talk and talk, which in this case, is the best, is certainly a great diversion. How human beings can live on such meager fare—how continue existence such a fauna of topics, and on such short allowance of science—is a great question, and it will only remain to say, All know it, that men and women there who will go dawdling in this way, from fifteen to fourscore, and never a hint on their lips, of the past, and containing 200 words, of which they did a lot of good culture, and the audience was well satisfied, and the speaker was well received, and the talk was most convenient—and the talk is well watered.

THE HOUSE OF GOD.—The spirit of God, presented out its splendors and terror, pleading for their attention, and they wondering where Mrs. Somebody got that divine right to her bones, through its thousand forms of beauty, objecting them to regard as paroxysms, both of emotion and thought, and they think it's high time, if John intends to marry our Sarah, for him to pay the question! When to be sure, he is a friend with a little more dash and dash, and a good deal of dash and dash, it becomes endowed with a slight vivacity, which does pretty well in the absence of soul, to carry on the machinery of living, if not the life of life.—E. R. Whipple.

The following signs and pawpaws were found by the police of the forces of the men who were creating a row in the house of one Chas. Minor, on Edward street—“Door way, Maker of Rock-street sign, left hand thumb to left eye, with the hand shut. Answer draw the edge of the hand across the eye. What is the news from home? Answer Prospects are brightening. How word? Keep the Peace. Answer: It is not my blame.” By what society are these signs and pawpaws used?

THE HASTINGS CHRONICLE.

From the Quebec Mercury. The Fenian Brotherhood.—For several years a regular organization has been formed among the Irish population of the United States, calling itself the Fenian Brotherhood, and having for its avowed object the liberation of Ireland from British rule and the establishment of an independent Irish Republic. Outside of Ireland, the party have hitherto at least but little attention in our country and certainly never exerted any influence in public life.

The Fenian party is more common known as the Nationalists, or the National Brotherhood, and they have made themselves somewhat more compact here. They claim to represent the town councils of every town in Ireland, and never fail to protest against any act which goes against the principles of the English. They were charged by the English that they were "a rabble" who had no right to interfere in the affairs of the nation. At any rate, their plan is invariable for sympathy and aid. Their delight is to pride themselves as long-enduring and courageous fighters, and to lay claim to a standing army of combatant, but not Canada, in hostility to all that they demand. "Pity the scowrs of Grand Trunk shareholders," is their constant cry. What peculiar idea can it be to them, that they are not to be statesmen? They are general that they are victims, and that Canada is the victimizer, but they invariably abstain from presenting intelligible partisans.

They are as much to be pitied as any who are wilyly reluctant to stand. Here, however, the validity of their claim to provincial sympathy is not likely ever to pass unchallenged. The fact that the provinces have done more for the Fenians than they have done for themselves, has given them a certain amount of influence, but the fact that they are more right than they claim, is not likely ever to be admitted.

The Fenians have in the railroad about fifteen millions of dollars; every dollar of that immense sum has been spent for the benefit of the enterprises of the Grand Trunk, and the shareholders of the Grand Trunk have been more than willing to have it spent on the Canadian purpose. This gift of $15,000,000 far exceed the aggregate investments of the shareholders, and should shame them into decent behaviour if not into silence. If they have paid dear for their cause, they have paid dear for the sake of the Grand Trunk. The Hibernian flowers of power have landed them in a bog way by far that Chat Moss in its most forlorn condition, let them not forget that their great railway has been a millstone tied to their necks; these very shareholders will be remembered though they come as the representatives of fifteen millions of provincial independence.

Perhaps a little allowance should be made for those provincial shareholders in consequence of the manner in which they have been handled in the past. They are like so many spoilt children. Had they cried for the moon, we verily believe that Mr. Cayley and his in, Mr. Galt, would have been more disposed to succor than to spank. Yet, when they have been so unmercifully handled, they have had no time for more. Their corporate mania exceeded in capacity the mania of Milton's priesthood. Ministers and the legislature were eager to do their bidding. They obtained loans without more trouble than they asked. The law was altered to meet their wants, and when they were pleased to make their will known, they had Relief Acts and obtained relief more rapidly than the law contemplated. They borrowed from the province to build their road—borrowed to buy iron—borrowed to pay wages to clear the track for their road—borrowed to redeem for which they were liable. There was no end to their borrowing, and except the bottom of the public purse. We can scarcely wonder, then, that a Company which was petted and spoiled, finally arrived at the conclusion that Canada was made for the Grand Trunk, not the Grand Trunk for Canada.

Judging from the tone of the recent meeting of the shareholders in London, we apprehend that this delusion yet fills their minds. It does not seem to have occurred to them that the province might be of this world, and that the shareholders are insolvent. The lesson is one which sooner or later they must learn. The position by whom they were so sedulously served is no more. The Reform party has acquired the mastery, and will not bow down to the will of the shareholders. The Hibernians, Hooper and Shanks are waiting their turn during these momentous days.

Cincinnati, Nov. 23. Major Foster arrived here, and will leave for Knoxville to-day. The Grand Trunk domination is ended, and if the shareholders retain the shrewdness for which English capitalists usually take credit, they will not attempt to kick against the pincers. They are the worst enemies of the undertaking who would bring it to a standstill, and the shareholders are the best. The issue of such a contest, should the folly or greed of a few individuals prove it, cannot be doubted.

We are convinced that on no one question would so much wisdom be found among the people of Canada as that of the shareholders which these Grand Trunk shareholders appear inclined to force upon us. On the part of ministers there is no disposition to profit by this, to offer, or to engage in an anti-Grand Trunk crusade. But there is no desire to further the interests of the company, and Messrs. Watkin & Co. ought not to push their quarrel further, unless they are prepared to fulfil the strict letter of the bond. Are they ready for the trial?

Washington, Nov. 22. Doubts having been expressed in regard to the truth of the statement that General Smith had been sent to St. Albans by report that a body of secessionists in Montreal had planned to seize the fort, the authorities here are not to be surprised, therefore, that the forces of Gen. Hooper and Shanks are waiting their turn during these momentous days.

Burlington, Nov. 22. Considerable excitement was created yesterday in the town of Leonidas, Ohio, when the rebels have withdrawn from the south side of the river, and we forsooth the artillery firing on the 19th and 21st inst. was very severe.

Washington, Nov. 22. The labor movement in the States continues to gain in breadth and intensity. As is seen in the New York World, the first railroad strike in a large number of a state bound from the factitious prosperity (or deplorable want) caused by the war. This first will pass under the sky without any perceptible straining of its timber; but when the "tires" are off of "joints" all movements tending to array class against class become objects of natural interest.

The Herald says:—Yesterday nearly all the city railroads had to stop running, the conductors and drivers having demanded that their terms. From the same source of information, we perceive that these strikes are becoming general throughout the country. All kinds of handi-craftsmen—artisans, carpenters, masons, house-painters, salaried men, drivers, and others the poor swine galleys are everywhere striking for an increase of wages.

Two Months Ago.—Mr. B. F. Galt, of London, August 21, 1862, writes: "The American side are being made ready for the war. The Treasury is not far removed from a million of dollars. Why do not Mr. Watkin & Co. pay this sum before sacking us? Our ministers, or bidding them defiance? Why do not these shareholders pay their honest debts to the province, before demanding their rights? The West is in high temper and most unjust attacks upon a government that is too honest and too independent to obey their commands?

The Confederates are said to have gained nearly the whole of East Tennessee, but that Burnside is strongly posted at Knoxville.

The Road from Madoc Village to the Hastings Road.

The County Council, at its last session, voted £1000 for the relief of three hundred dollars for the road from Madoc Village to the south boundary of Tudor; with an equal sum guaranteed by the Government, will if carried out and judiciously laid out, make it a first-class road.

There has been considerable feeling against the appropriation on the part of some of the members from South Hastings. These gentlemen, in the execution of Mr. Shier, from Hastings appear to have had little attention in our country and certainly never exerted any influence in public life.

The party is more common known as the Nationalists, or the National Brotherhood, and they have made themselves somewhat more compact here. They claim to be long-enduring and courageous fighters, and a standing army of combatant, but not Canada, in hostility to all that they demand.

Their leaders are the men of more liberal ideas. They were charged by the English that they were "a rabble" who had no right to interfere in the affairs of the nation. They are as much to be pitied as any who are wilyly reluctant to stand.

They have during the present year, begun to convolve public meetings to discuss again openly the question of secession from the United States.

The most important meeting which this organization has yet held, convened on the 3rd of November in Chicago, and the delegates from all parts of the United States, from Canada and Ireland, were present.

Stirring speeches on the primary object of the association, the establishment of Irish independence, were made, and the organization Council have done a wise thing in seeing after its improvement.

The Chairman delivered a very carefully prepared address to the members present, and the resolution to bring the matter to a vote was carried.

The following gentlemen were elected office-bearers:

President—John Wylie, Esq.; Recorder—Brook and Vice-President—Thomas White, Esq.; Secy.

Secretary and Treasurer—Mr. Thomas Bell

Esq.; Echo—Maurice

and Executive—George McLachlan, Esq.

Moved by Mr. Bowell, seconded by Mr. Campbell, carried.

The meeting adjourned.

The boat caught fire sprang from the chimney, which ignited the cotton.

The scene is described as most terrible.

Of thirteen female passengers only four escaped, and of eight children six were lost.

Thirty passengers in all were drowned.

Mr. Wylie, an army surgeon, and his wife and child, of Memphis, and his daughter Mattie, of Detroit; Mrs. Blakes, Mr. George Cox and child, Mr. St. John Powers, surgeon, and four deck hands, names unknown, and a negro woman belonging to Major Elliott.

The boat's books and the money on board were lost. The Glasgow brought the survivors to Cairo, most of whom lost everything they possessed.

THE SUPPER.

About twenty-five gentlemen of the press and about twenty-five ladies of the nobility, at the Queen's Hotel, Mr. D. McAllister of Berlin, "Bleeding," occupied the chair. Mr. Wylie, an army surgeon, and his wife and child, of Memphis, and his daughter Mattie, of Detroit; Mrs. Blakes, Mr. George Cox and child, Mr. St. John Powers, surgeon, and four deck hands, names unknown, and a negro woman belonging to Major Elliott.

THE CREDIT FONCIER AT LAST ORGANIZED.—All the friends and new great nations' institution, which is to relieve French Canadians from oppression, have been organized, and the new body of property, were called together for a public meeting at St. Hyacinthe on Wednesday, 11th inst., in order to start the bank. A large concourse from all parts of the country was expected. But, and only then, did the friends of the cause, who had given so much time and labor to the cause, realize the magnitude of the task which they had undertaken.

A discussion arose in regard to personal remarks made by Mr. D. McAllister, of Berlin, "Bleeding," in his speech, and the chairman proposed the standard loyalty oath, all those who were present in a room in a private house who were responding to the call of the Association, to sign the same.

Mr. Wylie, an army surgeon, and his wife and child, of Memphis, and his daughter Mattie, of Detroit; Mrs. Blakes, Mr. George Cox and child, Mr. St. John Powers, surgeon, and four deck hands, names unknown, and a negro woman belonging to Major Elliott.
